

Nature can afford little inconsistencies.

You can't.

When one egg differs from the next, you can't blame the hen. But when your product differs from shipment to shipment, that's another story.

One way to guarantee uniform quality is to select ingredients that perform consistently. When it comes to stabilizers and emulsifiers, that means Germantown.

For certain key raw materials, we reject one out of every five samples submitted to us...and we test every finished product to be certain that it will perform the way you expect it to, every time.

There's a Germantown ingredient that's right for your products. For details, contact your Germantown Technical Representative; or call: (215) 544-8400.

We're working to make your products work.
