

What's Jamison doing at Sky Chefs?

Pie in the sky is only one of thousands of food items that nation-wide Sky Chefs provides for hungry in-flight passengers on many leading airlines. On the ground Sky Chefs operates a large chain of airport restaurants.

The dual job is one of monumental proportions, calling for superb organization, computerization of minute details, training of skilled personnel and efficient preparation facilities strategically located from coast to coast.

The latter accounts for what Jamison is doing at Sky Chefs. For example, their recently completed food service facility at La Guardia, New York, includes six Jamison see-thru acrylic cooler doors and three Jamison metal clad freezer doors. The transparent doors are lightweight and easy to operate.

Sky Chefs is representative of many progressive forward-looking organizations that have made Jamison the leading cold storage door specification.
